

Universities Federation for Animal Welfare

(Founded 1926)

UFAW is an internationally recognised scientific and educational charity which adopts an objective and realistic approach to animal welfare by looking at the behaviour and needs of animals, making rational judgements and giving expert advice on how particular species should be cared for and managed.

The Federation holds symposia and workshops; carries out and sponsors scientific research into many aspects of the biology and welfare of farmed, companion, wild, zoo and laboratory animals; produces standard texts on animal care and management and publishes technical reports, as well as a quarterly scientific journal Animal Welfare.

UFAW is an independent registered charity supported by donations, legacies and membership subscriptions and receives no government or university funding.

SUBSCRIPTIONS

The most economical and beneficial way individuals can help is by joining UFAW and paying an annual subscription under Gift Aid by Standing Order.
