UFAW SAWI FUND ANNOUNCES CALLS FOR ITS 2020 RESEARCH TRAINING SCHOLARSHIP

Up to £150,000 for an Animal Welfare Research project in Israel

UFAW is making available an award of up to £150,000 to support an innovative animal welfare research project in Israel. The 2020 UFAW SAWI Research Training Scholarship (RTS) is aimed at advancing animal welfare or improving our understanding of animal welfare challenges and is intended to provide funding to undertake research leading to the award of a doctoral degree (PhD or equivalent). The award is open to applicants from any institution based in Israel which can grant a doctoral degree.

Funding up to a maximum value of £150,000 GBP is available and UFAW would particularly like to encourage applications in the following fields:

- development of approaches to eliminate or alleviate significant welfare problems in farmed animals
- development of methodologies aimed at elucidation of the neurological basis of sentience in animals
- development of methods of welfare/quality of life assessment, including detection and alleviation of pain, distress and cumulative lifetime experience
- development of methods for humane pest control
- research aimed at improving the welfare of fish – especially those farmed or caught for food.

UFAW does not wish to exclude potentially valuable projects in other aspects of animal welfare science and applications for work in other areas will also be welcomed. The award can be used to support research into welfare of any animal species, including farm, zoo, companion, laboratory and wild or feral animals, where this is affected by human activities.

The applications will be judged on their importance for animal welfare, scientific and other merits and value for money.

Note to editors:

The UFAW SAWI Fund is specifically to support and promote scientific and educational initiatives for the advancement of animal welfare in Israel. The Fund has evolved from the Society for Animal Welfare in Israel, once a charitable organisation in its own right and now an integral part of UFAW. Currently, the fund is open to support projects in Israel which can lead to major animal welfare benefits - high quality science, or major, strategic, educational initiatives for animal welfare in Israel will be considered for support.

The first SAWI Scholarship was awarded to Roi Mandel in 2011 in the hope that it would not only develop useful animal welfare knowledge, but also help build Israeli capacity in animal welfare science. Roi's scholarship and subsequent work is an excellent start and his teaching work is helping to develop interest and expertise in animal welfare in the next generation of animal welfare professionals.

You can learn more about the work the fund has supported in the past, including the previous SAW RTS awarded in 2011 here

The Universities Federation for Animal Welfare (UFAW) is an internationally recognised, independent scientific and educational animal welfare charity. It works to improve knowledge and understanding of animals' needs in order to achieve high standards of welfare for farm, companion, research, captive wild animals and those with which we interact in the wild.

UFAW improves animal welfare worldwide through its programme of awards, grants and scholarships; by educational initiatives, especially at university and college level; by providing information in books, videos, reports and in its scientific journal Animal Welfare;
